Mr. W. P. G. Harding Has Full Confidence in State Warehouse System. "I congratulate you heartily upor the good work you have done, and your state is fortunate in having such a warehouse system," said W. P. G. Harding, a member of the federal reserve board, in a letter to John L McLaurin, state warehouse commis-

Mr. Harding has taken a decided interest in the warehouse system of South Carolina and has not been chary in praising its workings. He was of material assistance in helping the commissioner to secure loans at a reasonable rate of interest in New York when Senator McLaurin, accompanied by Senator J. A. Banks, made a visit there several weeks ago.

Mr. Harding, who is an Alabamian by birth, probably will make an address before the South Carolina Pressession at its annual meeting at association at its annual meeting at Chick Springs on the new currency system. As he is a southerner and is versed with the economic situation in this section of the country particularily the financial needs in harvesting and marketing the cotton crop, an address by him will be of particular value to the newspaper men of the

In his letter to Senator McLaurin, Mr. Harding says: "On my return this morning I find your letter of the 26th instant. I am very sorry, indeed, that I missed you when you called on your way back from New York, but am delighted to know that you were successful in placing loans with state warehouse receipts as security. I congratulate you heartily upon the good work that you have done, and your state is fortunate in having such a warehouse system.

tion that it snowed on April 15, 1849,

A reader of the State sends a clipping from an old newspaper which calls 1816 "the year without a summer." The data from which the article was written is said to have been taken from a diary kept by a person living in New York. It tells of snow and ice beginning in May and lasting through August after a very mild winter, but does not refer very mild winter, but does not refer to weather conditions in the south. Gov. John Drayton in his "View of South Carolina" (1802) tells of a re-South Carolina." (1802) tells of a remarkably severe spring in South Carolina. "The commencement of the year 1800 was uncommonly cold," the year 1800 was uncommonly cold," adjustment. His latest proposal, it is the territory which a says, "and several snows fell during the months of January and February, some of which covered the grounds of the lower country six grounds of the lower country six grounds of the upper country two or three feet deep, contry two or three feet deep, controlled to the war and turned over to Italy when peace is concluded. This suggestion was advanced, it is stated, to insure Italy's neutrality. It is said try two or three feet deep, continuing on the latter for some weeks. Another storm, but of hail and wind, had a few years before waste the valley of the Catawba. "The discharge of hallstones was so heavy and large," says Drayton, "that the pine trees, which were just putting out buds in the spring and were interspersed amongst the oaks and hickories on the hills, were completely killed; and exhibit a wild and in windy weather an awful appearance to anyone who may be traveling amongst them whilst they are rocking amongst them whilst they are rocking to and fro and successively falling down. Fields of wheat and other grain were beaten to pieces and de-stroyed and hallstones remained in the valleys for many days." "In April, 1793," says the same chronicler, "a similar storm swept through parts of Orangeburg and Ninety-Six districts. has reached 10.50 in New York, and this stiffening in the market has encouraged southern holders. Very little selling of futures is going on. Fitle selling of futures is going on. Financial America takes this as proof of the contention that the entire surplus supply is in strong hands, and that the present holders are waiting for even higher prices. The time in which free shipments of cotton was permitted, expired March 31, and up to that date, the exports had passed the 6,500,000-bale mark. This indicates total takings by Great Britain to have been 7,000,000 bales. Financial America notes that Renskorf, Lyon & Co., have issued a circular entitled, "What is a Dollar's Worth of Cotton." The circular says that the European war has resulted in an unusual standard of money measurement in Europe and the financial legislation in Washington has done the same thing in the United States, and claims that "either other articles are expressfinancial problem such as was the case last year."—Charlotte Observer.

"Best Fire Medicine"

About a year ago, I accepted the agency of the Pyrene Fire Extinguisher for York county, and announced the fact in an advertisement in The ed the fact in an advertisement in The Enquirer, and explained what the extinguisher would do, and also announced that the insurance rate on all automobiles carrying Pyrenes would be reduced 15 per cent, but to my surprise, sold comparatively few, and quite naturally, I think, came to the conclusion that owners of burnable property either doubted the claims made for the Pyrene as a fire extinguisher or attached no importance to being in position to extinguish incipent fires. I sold two Pyrenes to the Clover Cotton Manufacturing Co, They were installed in the picker room. Following unsolicited letter was received March 20, from Mr. M. L. Smith, treasurer and general man-L. Smith, treasurer and general man-ager of the company:

Clover, S. C., March 20, 1915. Mr. Sam M. Grist, Yorkville, S. C. Dear Sir: Please send us six cans Pyrene. This is the best medicine for
